HCS water woes resolved with plan to drill own well

BY TRACI BONNEY The Hancock County School Board voted Monday to solve the new junior/senior high school's water problem by drilling a well.

The school, located in Kiln Water District's service area, has faced for some time the possibility of being without water when the school year begins.

The school district had planned to use the services of the county Port and Harbor Commission, which already is providing sewerage and fire protection services, but Kiln Water District officials informed the school board that the water district must provide service for the school.

The school board, unwilling to pay the higher rates charged by Kiln Water District, has decided to hire Cortech, Inc., to produce the engineering specifications necessary to drill a well and construct a holding tank and booster pump for the school.

Kiln Water District had issued the board an ultimatum to either agree to receive the district's services, drill a well for the school or risk losing the school's current temporary water service from the Port and Harbor Commission if the board insisted on pursuing an agreement with the

The board, after voting to hire Cortech for the specification work, authorized board attorney Joseph "Jody" Gex to do any legal work associated with the project, including filing for a temporary injunction, if necessary, to prevent Kiln Water District from demanding that the Port and Harbor Commission end the school's temporary water service. In other matters, the architect and contractor for the new school reported that work on the building is progressing smoothly.

Other topics addressed included:

-bids on the school's wastewater treatment plant, janitorial and custodial services, equipment for the new school, sports facilities and the vacant Clermont Harbor school building;

bids on fences; a security system; waste disposal; fire extinguishers; pest control services; transportation supplies, repairs and equipment; propane; school pictures and a maintenance agreement on the wastewater treatment plant.

-approval of a number of other items including bill payments, contract and other requests, 16th Section leases, the travel agenda and two employment recommendations for substitute employees.

Community pride is center stage at council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Community improvement and pride seemed to be the theme for the night as several DeMontluzin Street residents, Calvin Smith of the NAACP and other Bay St. Louis residents attended the first May meeting of the Bay St.

Louis City Council Tuesday. Smith, president of the Hancock County branch of the NAACP, proposed several laws and programs to revitalize community pride in the corridor between Bookter and Ballentine

Sand beach verdict: wait and see

Louis Capozzoli.

BY TRACI BONNEY

How difficult can it be to replenish a beach? Ask anyone on the Hancock County Sand Beach Advisory Committee or the Board of Supervisors, and he or she probably will tell you it can be very difficult.

The beach in question is the one along the Gulf in Bay St. Louis and Waveland. Parts of it need renourishing with fresh sand.

The problem so far has been finding enough of the right type of sand to do the job.

At a Monday meeting, Bill Mitchell and Dr.

Louis Capozzoli told the board of supervisors that some offshore sand had been found, but the grain was very fine, perhaps too fine for use on the beach. The areas that have been targeted for renourishment are at Coleman and Washington avenues and at the entrance to Buccaneer State Park. All three places are considered high-use areas and tend to erode more quickly than other parts of the beach.

Mitchell, engineer for the project, reviewed the process used to search for offshore sand to dredge, then told the board the sand that was found is high in quantity, but low in quality. Capozzoli, who analyzes the sand samples that have been found, said the sand, which is gray and much finer than that already on the beach, will cause several problems if used.

the county board of supervisors passed a motion Monday to request that Texas Flat Road be added to the county's state aid road system.

Seal estimated the cost at about $4.4 million to improve the 13-mile road between Mississippi highways 603 and 607 that leads to the John C. Stennis Space Center.

Under the Economic Development Highway Act, the state provides funds for road construction as an incentive to industry. According to Harold

"Buz" Olsen, port and harbor commission executive director, Stennis Space Center's Advanced Launch System and Advanced Solid Rocket Motor programs would provide the reason for requesting the

Other matters addressed at the meeting included:

—the issuance of a proclamation to Dena Bisnette for her coverage of local news while at the Sea Coast Echo;

-an update of the Hancock County Sand Beach Advisory Committee's efforts at locating the proper type and quantity of sand to renourish local beaches;

-complaints of vandalism of the remains of an Oak Harbor house that burned down in October of 1989:

-claims that two private vehicles were damaged by gravel from county vehicles; -residents' complaints of shotguns being fired too near their houses:

—and a request from Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre that escrowed funds for a bridge and road improvement project be released now that the project is near completion.

The board recessed until May 15 at 9 a.m.

Council passes cleanup ordinance

The Bay St. Louis City Council passed Ordinance 337 at its Tuesday meeting, giving the council the authority to levy a fine of up to $5,000 on any property owner who does not comply with demands that his or her lot be cleaned.

The ordinance, which takes effect June 7, repeals a section of a local cleanup ordinance which gave the city authority to updated state law which gives stiffer penalties and allows the city more liberty in enforcing and conducting cleanup work. In addition to the $5,000 fine, the state law also allows the city to either take bids for contracting cleanup work or to use city employees for the work, whereas the repealed ordinance only authorized contract work.

Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre pointed out that the state law is not a general cleanup ordinance. It can be enforced fine up to $1,000 in favor of an only in cases where the property has been declared a public menace for health or safety reasons.

However, the city is working on a general cleanup ordinance which would allow regulation in matters where no menace has been declared but where there still is a problem. After passing Ordinance 337. the council discussed approxi-. mately 25 properties that are in need of cleanup work. Public hearings were set for June 19 on 10 of those properties.

'Jericho March' at clinic planned for Mother's Day

BY TRACI BONNEY

While most people will spend the day this Sunday with family, members of local churches are commemorating Mother's Day in a different way.

Members of churches throughout the Coast will stage a Mother's Day Jericho March and Rally at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Gulf Coast Women's Clinic in Norwood Village Shopping Center in Gulfport

The clinic, which performs abortions, has been a target pro-life demonstrations almost since its inception.

In the local area, Nathan Barber, pastor of First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis, is encouraging members of his congregation to participate in this year's march.

Barber plans to participate. He said, "This is something I" have to do. I have to take a stand publicly against abortion.

"We have to do something to stop this murder, the killing of babies, which is the worst form of child abuse.'

Barber said the abortion issue cuts through denominational lines because it affects

"If the church cannot draw the line today with the killing of innocent pre-born babies, I don't know when it will ever draw the line with any issue.' In past years, church members from many denominations and congregations have held Mother's Day marches. This year, the march, coordinated by the pro-life group Heartbeat, will be conducted according to the biblical account in Joshua 6 of the march around Jericho by the children of Israel.

Just as the Israelites marched seven times in silence around Jericho, then shouted a victory shout following the sounding of a ram's horn, those who participate Sunday will march silently around the clinic

The public nuisance law would close businesses that allow minors to buy and drink alcoholic beverages; businesses that are a source of constant disruption to the community because of fights or misdemeanor and felony activity such as assaults or robbery; and businesses where sale of illegal drugs occurs or where someone on the premises is in possession of drugs with the intent to sell or distribute.

Smith said the Bookter/ Ballentine area has lost a number of its young males to alcohol and drug abuse. In addition to the laws, he proposed a street cleanup program which would involve churches and community leaders.

Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre told Smith that such a program, called Project Pride and spearheaded by Carol Vegas, is being planned at this time.

Smith's last proposal was that the city implement a Drug Free Zone Program, especially in school zones, that would

Other suggestions made by Smith included reinstating a foot patrol for the police department and enlarging the force by hiring more minority and female officers.

. Ruth Thompson, president of the Bay St. Louis Business Association, updated the council on preparations for the Beachfront Festival scheduled for June 3.

DeMontluzin Street residents voiced concerns about the open drainage ditches in their neighborhood. One resident pointed out that Bay St. Louis is a city and should have covered ditches, sidewalks and curbs instead of open ditches.

He said that he — and as far as he knew, most of the residents on the 200 block - would be willing to pay the frontage fees necessary to improve the drainage and the appearance of their section of the street.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Are you a perpetual student?

As most of our regular readers probably know by now, the other half of the reporting staff. Dena Bisnette, recently left the Sea Coast Echo to "do the student thing," as she put it.

Dena is pursuing her second master's degree. She's finishing work on her first this week, assuming she passed all her exams - which I'm sure she

She's what a friend of mine calls a "perpetual student," someone who has finished work on a degree, but isn't really happy unless he or she is taking a

My friend should know; she lived with one for years.

It was her father. He was (and still is, as far as I know) a professor at Mississippi State University. Although he taught full time, he managed to arrange his schedule so that he could take at least one threehour course a semester.

I knew another perpetual student when I was in college at Mississippi University for Women. She had finished one degree and was working on a

In fact, she graduated May 9, 1987 — the same day I did with a bachelor of fine arts degree in theater art.

She was 69 years old - or should I say young?

To obtain a degree in theater art from MUW, you have to participate in plays and other productions throughout the year. This means being either onstage or backstage — and occasionally, above-stage.

This wonderful woman, who had a great sense of humor and a very youthful attitude, was terrified of heights. That didn't stop her, though, from climbing up a ladder onto a catwalk thirty feet in the air so that she could be one of the snowthrowers for the annual production by the dance and drama departments of the Nutcracker

I see her attitude reflected in other perpetual students, like my friend's father and Dena.

Perpetual students, like most of us, need constant challenges to their intellects and abilities. However, unlike most of us, perpetual students are willing to seek those challenges in the

I thought, while still in school, that I wanted to become a perpetual student. I liked the hours, the company and the activities.

The only problem was that I didn't have the money.

If it hadn't been for scholarships, I would not have been in college in the first place. There was little chance of my finding the funds to continue my education beyond the four years needed for an undergraduate degree.

Besides, after I got into the "real world" of work and self-sufficiency I found out that my desire to be a perpetual student was no more than insecurity at leaving the familiar and facing life on my own.

In fact, by my senior year, I was sick of school. I'd gone for 17 years, including kindergarten, and I was ready to move on to something else. My dad and mom tried to talk me into applying to a graduate school and going for my master's degree, but I'd had enough of academia.

I won't say I'm not a perpetual student, though. I love to learn; I just prefer to do it in bits and pieces, pursuing knowledge through the local library and bookstores in whatever areas pique my curiosity.

That's how I taught myself some sign language (the manual alphabet and a few signs) and how to crochet, embroider and do needlepoint.

So, to all those perpetual students who haunt the corridors of the state's universities year after year, I salute you and encourage you to keep going.

To my fellow perpetual students who teach themselves, I say, "Welcome to the club."

To Dena, I say: God bless you and good luck. Have fun doing "the student thing." We'll miss

Rev. Charles Johnson was recently honored as the founder and first headmaster of Coast Episcopal School, and I am glad he was recognized for his many years of service to this community.

I can remember back in 1948 when Father J., as he is called by many folks, came to Bay St. Louis as pastor of Christ Episcopal Church.

My mother did some sewing of church garments for

It seems as if it were just yesterday when Coast Episcopal School got started, yet it has been 40 years ago.

During his many years as a pastor and school administrator, he has seen many things happen which would make some folks just give up.

I am referring to having his church totally demolished by Hurricane Camille and a new high school suffer the same fate in Pass Christian. The elementary school in Bay St. Louis was also gutted by Camille, while many members of his church family also suffered heavy losses.

Father J's contributions to the area, such as serving as president of the Hancock Medical Center's board and many other endeavors have been a big contributions to our area.

Technically Father J is retired, but his work load still continues today.

I wish to personally offer my congratulations to Father J and I hope he continues to enjoy his retirement.

The annual luncheon for elected officials, sponsored by the Hancock County Extension Homemakers Council, was held on Monday.

Joyce O'Keefe, Coastal Area director, addressed the elected officials and club members reporting a search is under way for a new county agent.

Norma Haas, past president of the Extension Homemakers Council, was coordinator for the luncheon which was well prepared by council members.

As many of you know, the Extension Service offers many programs throughout the year to the citizens of the county.

Darlene Underwood, Extension Service director. does a very good job, and she is also involved in many community projects, all for the betterment of the area.

I would like to tell all the ladies to keep up the good job they are doing.

Hundreds of Mississippi's leaders will be setting aside their own business problems in a few days, taking time to debate and discuss issues of state.

These business leaders, from every geographic region of the state, make up the volunteers of the Mississippi Economic Council. The occasion that brings them together is the annual assembly of MEC's councils and committees, all scheduled to meet in Jackson on May 29.

The assembly begins the 42nd year of service to Mississippi by the Council, the state's largest organization of business, industrial and professional leaders.

The Council tackles a challenging new work schedule this year, including such assign-

Waveland gas users pay freight for non-users' public services

Dear Editor:

The excessive charge made for cooking gas by the City of Waveland Water and Gas Department just does not

Comparison with the per unit rate charged by Louisiana Gas in the Slidell area show that a 46 cent unit of gas in Slidell costs $1 per identical measured unit in Waveland.

Recently we discussed this will a Waveland Water and Gas Department administrative employee to be informed by that person that the 54 cents per unit surcharge amount "went to defray public services not covered by municipal taxes."

This means that we gas users are forced to pay for the municipal "extra public services" for recipients of such services who have total electric utilities, who, in other words, do not use

Although we have made several "sorties" on the Water and Gas Department, we still do not have a clear understanding of the allegated public services covered by the surcharge. It is certainly very confusing.

It certainly has not gone to cleaning out drainage ditches which are weed choked, overflow after heavy rainfall and are havens for snakes and rodents. I know firsthand about the snakes, because recently I killed a large moccasin which was slithering across the roadway in transit from ditch to ditch. The mosquito problem generated by these nondraining ditches is intolerable in this day and age!

How about it, Waveland City Hall! If we citizens need to contribute more tax money to maintain certain municipal services, let's put it to the vote! Let's not tax the poor cooking gas user and ignore the total lectric user revolution in Colonial America about just such a situation!

Lott's vote on ammo plant was misunderstood

To the Editor,

Senator Trent Lott's vote to deny funding to the Army Ammunition Plant has ben misunderstood. Senator Sam Nunn, Democrat-Georgia, chairman, U.S. Armed Services Committee, addressed this issue with a letter to the Clarion-Ledger published April 25. In this letter, Senator Nunn praised both Senator Lott's and Representative Gene Taylor's 'tireless efforts' to keep the Ammunition Plant open.

Senator Nunn explained that Senator Lott, "strongly urged the committee to approve $90 million for continued produc-tion during the fiscal year 1990." They met on this issue at Senator Lott's request on three different occasions.

Realizing there was no possibility to obtain the funding from the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator Lott then brought to the committee's attention that funds had not been identified for an orderly layaway of the facility. After this was pointed out to the committee, they then voted to deny funds for further production. but approved the use of additional funds for the layaway

By voting the way Senator Lott did, he diminished the possibility of an abrupt shutdown, which would have had devastating effects on the employees of the facility. After securing the funds for an orderly laya-way, Senator Lott still has the opportunity to plea for the $90 million needed for continued production.

Senator Lott demonstrated by this compromise vote that he had the best interest of the Ammunition Plant employees at heart. It is a shame that some opportunists have tried to make political gains from Senator Lott's well-intentioned vote.

Redfish population is being destroyed by nets

To the Editor,

In Par. 4, Page 3, Section C of the Daily-Herald issue of April 20, the article "Redfish Release," Chris Snyder, BMR Public Relations coordinator, states: "We choose to have a fish release in order to focus on the need to manage and preserve our living resources.

If the BMR is interested in preserving our marine resources, they will outlaw gill and trammel net fishing on the shorelines of Hancock County.

The redfish released today will be trapped in a net at some future date and drowned. Then they will be thrown away so that the netter is not caught with an illegal redush.

It is a fact: The redfish population is not only overfished, but is being destroyed by nets.

Snyder states: "It's going to take a cooperative effort by all parties involved... especially the public."

The public has no voice in managing Mississippi Marine resources. The decisions are made by the BMR!

Management of our marine resources should be taken out of the hands of the present indivi-duals responsible for allowing gill nets to destroy sport fishing for future generations!

Sincerely, J. E. Servat Waveland

Alternative education a plus for Hancock

One need not to be reminded of the K-12 dropout rate of 35.7 percent in Hancock County school systems to realize we are in a crisis situation.

We are fortunate that a small group of concerned citizens formed an organization two years ago called Hancock County Alternative School Association (HCASA).

HCASA is a private non-profit education foundation dedicated to the prevention of school dropouts and return of unemployed, recent school dropouts to an ongoing educational program.

The education of our youth should be the concern of

The purpose of HCASA is to educate students who often do not qualify for special education or cannot be served through the Chapter I program.

It has taken two years for HCASA to become organized, and hopefully the education program will begin this fall.

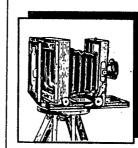

The program is to be funded through grants and other sources, and the organization is in the process of receiving a tax-exempt status.

The non-profit corporation was incorporated in January 1989 and has an elected board of directors.

Officers are Dr. Bertin Chevis, chairman; Frank McNeil, vice-president; Elaine Lizana, secretary and Geraldine Lang, treasurer.

The support of the entire community is needed in order for this new special education program to succeed, and we hope everyone will give their 100 percent support.

More information on the Alternative School program is on Page 1C in this issue of the Echo.

TO: ALL EMPLOYEES, AND THEIR FAMILIES, OF PAN AM WORLD SERVICES, INC. AND WILLIAMS WRECKING & CONSTRUCTION CO., INC. WORKING AT THE STENNIS SPACE CENTER IN MISSISSIPPI

The IAM Union Local #2249 is engaging in strike action which began on May 7, 1990. We want to be sure all our employees are aware of the significant improvements contained in the Company's last offer to the Union.

Pan Am World Services' employee average rate of pay prior to the strike is $10.20. The lowest rate is $7.20 and the highest rate is $12.13.

World Services agreed to a 3-year agreement with increases for all employees of 4% for the first year, 3½ % the second year and 3½ % the third year. Additionally, employees in shop leader classifications would receive an additional $.10 per hour for each year of the agreement.

Pension

World Services agreed in the third year to increase its contribution of $.50 per hour by an additional $.05 per hour -- to $.55 per hour.

Insurance

World Services agreed to a dental/vision plan at the same level of contribution by the Company that the short-term disability plan is being paid. The dental/vision plan would take the place of the short-term disability plan.

World Services agreed that any future increases to health care premiums would be shared equally by the Company and employees. Presently, the Company pays $50.16 per week per employee and employees pay $23.44 per week for family coverage.

The health care plan was selected and voted on by the employees. The Company adopted the plan on behalf of its employees and, as stated above; contributes twice the cost as compared to the employees' cost. Since the adoption of this plan in November 1988, there has been no increase in premiums.

New York

World Services agreed to two new classifications--Electronic Technician and Shop Leader #1. The rates of pay will be submitted to a neutral arbitrator if the Company and Union cannot agree in future discussions.

Sick Leave/Vacation

World Services agreed that employees who are sick and hospitalized could defer vacation periods to times when they are well.

There are a number of other areas of concern expressed by the Union which were agreed upon by the Company, such as:

Bidding and bumping rights

Seniority definitions

•Safety participation by Union representatives

•Buddy system on certain work such as elevator and electrical systems

•Apprenticeship Program

•Shift change notices

Shop work hours

Based upon the average rate alone, wages would be increased by $.41 per hour the first year, $.37 per hour the second year and $.38 per hour the third year.

Shop leaders, of which there are a significant number, would receive incremental increases of $.10 per hour for each of the three years over their current increment of $.50 per hour.

World Services believes this is a fair and reasonable offer. We suggest that you discuss this offer with your representative and ask them how it compares with the local market and other settlements for similar work.

World Services wants to share this with you to ensure that you have the true facts instead of inaccurate statements by uninformed sources. We want to put this strike behind us -- and are sure you and your families desire the same. Williams Wrecking offered comparable wage and benefit increases as those offered by World Services.

Water starts life in vegetable garden

By Dr. Milo Burnham Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Water is the biggest part of all the fruits and vegetables we eat. Take all the water out of a pound of peaches, lettuce, cucumbers or most other fruits and vegetables and vou'll be lucky to have 1 ounce of dry matter left. Water is that important to what we grow and eat!

The water in the garden that holds the most importance is the water in the soil. This is the water that fills a portion of the air spaces between the soil particles and surrounds these particles.

Water on vegetable plant leaves from an overhead sprinkler, rain or dew is relatively unimportant except that it may serve as a vehicle for the spread of fungal and bacter-

The water requirements of all vegetable plants are not the same nor are these requirements the same throughout the life

Water is critically important to seed germination and the survival of newly planted vegetable transplants. Seeds planted in barely moist or dry soils won't germinate or may be able to absorb enough water to start germination but not enough to complete it.

Seeds that swell but then dry out because of limited soil moisture generally die. This is why dry soil should be moistened before planting seeds.

Planting seeds in dry soil and then watering isn't the same as planting seeds in moist soil. Water applied after planting can result in crusting of the soil, which restricts emerging seedlings. This results in a reduced stand of plants.

Watering following transplanting heps to settle the soil around plant roots and to provide life-sustaining moisture until root systems make some growth and become established and functional.

The continued growth and development of plants is dependent on an adequate supply of soil moisture, but adequate moisture is again vitally important at the time of flowering and fruit development. A shortage of water at these stages of plant development can seriously reduce yields by causing shedding of blooms or young developing fruits.

When rains aren't sufficient to supply needed water, you, as a gardener, must do what you can to correct the problem. This is accomplished by combining your efforts to provide needed water with those of reducing water loss from the soil. Water loss from the soil is slowed by reducing evaporation from the soil surface. Protect the soil surface from drying winds and the hot sun with a layer of organic or plastic mulch. Organic mulches such as pine needles or clean straw reduce evaportation but allow rain or sprinkler irrigation water to reach the soil and replenish soil moisture.

Plastic mulches reduce surface evaporation but serve as a barrier to rain and sprinkler irrigation for soil moisture replenishment.

Irrigation water can be applied to garden soils in a number of different ways. Each has advantages and disadvantages. Drip irrigation, the relatively frequent application of small amounts of water to plant root zones, uses the least amount of water but the systems probably cost the most.

Sprinkler and flood irrigation don't require elaborate equipment but they waste water and can keep you out of the garden for several days until the middles dry enough for walking. Sprinkler irrigation also wets the vegetable plant leaves which can spread foliar diseases.

If the plant leaves must be wet while watering, water in late afternoon allowing enough time for the leaves to dry before dark. Drip irrigation can be used anytime of day and has the added advantage of permitting work in the garden wile it is being 'watered.

· The mount of water to apply with each irrigation depends on the method of application. Frequent applications of small amounts of water are recommended for drip irrigation to keep the soil moist to a depth of several

Forestry funds available

Funds are currently available under the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP) to assist farmers in planting trees, according to Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

"Farmers could save thousands of tons of topsoil over the next several years if they planted trees on idle and marginal cropland and on other critically eroded acres," he said.

Trees protect the soil and reduce sediment in streams. They also increase the value of the land.

The FIP helps increase the nation's timber products by encouraging private, non-industrial landowners to plant trees on suitable open lands or cutover areas and to perform timber stand improvement work for production of timber and other related forest resources.

Gennin said cost-sharing under the program is generally necessary because landowners often cannot afford to make the long-term investment needed to produce crops of timber.

Tree planting and timber stand improvement are two of the major practices offered under the program, in designated counties.

Farmers should contact the local ASCS office to request cost-sharing funds for three

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire

Many of us remember the days when the "Blackberry Women" strolled through the streets of our towns along the Coast and in New Orleans, their spotless tignons atop their heads, their luscious justpicked berries nestled among green leaves of the fig tree in their straw baskets, with their oh-so-melodic and traditional cries of "Bla-aa-ack berries! Fresh, ripe blackberries, so good!" The days of the blackberry women are gone, along with so many other old Southern traditions and customs; but the purply black berries, along with dewberries and other berries, are ripening all along the Coast.

I've been feasting on blackberries, with cream or just for munching, although it's a battle between me and the birds!

Also, however many I pluck from the brambles, the quantity diminishes all the way to the table; I suppose that's why my older brothers used to make my sister, and me whistle when we went a-berrying, for while we were whistling, we weren't ste-aling tastes of the luscious berries!

Blackberries are one of the _how could you make: first and most abundant wild crops of America, turned by the early settlers into cobblers, pies, jams, puddings and even into homemade wines and cordials.

To the very early pioneers, blackberries were a nuisance, spoken of as a weed which needed to be removed; but by the 1830's the blackberry had crept into the culinary lore of the country.

As the settlers plodded their way westward, braving Indian attacks, not to mention short rations, they carried along blackberry canes with their other provisions and goods, thus starting the growth in the Pacific Northwest—and many a hungry wanderer was sustained by blackberries found along the roads as he moved on. Incidentally, a word of cau-tion: never pick blackberries when they are red, becauce that's when they are green and not ripe-if you follow me! Seriously, you must wait until the berries are that ever-so-lush and wonderful, almost black purple—and try not to gobble them all up as you pick them, or

BLACKBERRY COBBLER (One of my favorites is the old-time cobbler, so easy to make; just sweeten the berries, pour them into a deep backing dish, and top with strips of pastry or biscuit dough in a lattice-work design so that the berries peep through the crust.)

1 egg, beaten 1/3 cup milk 2 Tblsp. shortening 1 cup flour 3/4 cup sugar 2 tsp. baking powder 1/2 tsp. salt

1 quart blackberries

1 cup sugar

(Six servings.)

1 tsp. cinnamon Beat the egg lightly, add sugar, shortening and milk. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together, and add to the first mixture, beating all together. Put the beries, sugar and cinnamon into a greased baking dish, and pour the bat-ter over. Bake in a 375 degree oven until done, say 45 minutes, and serve warm with cream.

Waveland baseball begins play Monday

The Waveland baseball season will open play on Monday, May 14 with the largest number of registered players ever. The age groups this year will be from T-ball to 15-year-olds, with teams playing every night except Sunday.

The T-ball teams will play on Thursdays and Saturdays; 9-10-year-olds on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; 11-12-year-olds, Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays; and 13-15-year-olds, Tuesdays and Saturdays, with traveling out-of-town on other nights.

"The start of the season has come a little late this year due to renovation work, but it's been well worth the wait," said League president Bernard Tusa.

"With the help of the City of Waveland, we now have new lights, the fences are moved back so the older boys can play and the field has been reworked. This park is in really good shape now, and we are still not finished making improvements," he said.

Appreciation is extended to the following team sponsors who have helped get the season started:

Goodyear, Dairy Queen, Charles H. Johnson Inc., Burger King, Pan Am, Bay Tech, Jacks, Coastal One-Hour

Photo, Sears, Big E Seafood, Coca Cola, Powell Chiropractic, Markel Industries, Alcan Cable, McDonalds, The Tricou House and Hancock Bank. "We are looking

All these teams have advanced to the state finals by winning in District play last month in Gulfport.

The teams have been working hard since the beginning of the season and the end result is that they get to play in the state finals. It's a pleasure to see the BAYS league do so well against the other Coast teams, and I know these teams will be facing some real tough competition in state this weekend," BAYS President Tusa said.

"It's an honor for these players and coaches to make it to state, so I hope they go up there to have fun, and maybe several of our teams can bring home a state championship. Good luck to everyone," Tusa concluded.

Pearl River Community College's baseball team was in a familiar spot this weekend. The Wildcats were in their third state-playoff tournament in as many years. Unfortunately for the Wildcats, the similiarity ended. there, as the team was knocked out of the tournament in the first two games, falling to North Division champ Mississippi Delta 5-4 Friday and losing to South Division champ Gulf Coast 10-0 Saturday. The Cats, who finished the year with a 22-17 record overall, had advanced to the tournament by earning a second place finish in the South with a 15-9 league slate.

However, in the team's last two trips, it made it as far as the Region 23 tournament before getting knocked out of post season play. The Cats, hampered by nagging injuries to a number of players, entered post-season play at a disadvantage, Jim Nightengale, the team's coach,

"I knew we were limited in what we could do," he said, adding that if the team could have won its first-round game, it might have given the players a needed boost. "That (the loss)

Bassin's with the pros

Bass fishing pro Charlie Reed has as much fishing tackle as any angler in the sport, but his favorite lure is a tiny little piece of plastic and lead weigh-ng less than a quarter ounce. "It's the plastic grub," says Reed, one of the nation's best known bass fishermen and a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff.

"I've been fishing them for years in lakes all across America, and I have a lot of confidence in them.

There really have been times when I've caught as many as a hundred bass per day on a

Reed believes plastic grubs, which are little more than short pieces of plastic about two inches long, are effective because they resemble baitfish. At certain times of the year, particularly in spring and again in fall, bass just can't let a grub go past without hitting it.

Grubs are made in two basic styles, those with curled or "swimming" tails and those with straight "paddle" tails. The curly tail models have more action because water movement causes the tail to vibrate, but the straight tail grub can be fished faster because it falls quicker.

"I usually rig a grub with a 1/8 or 1/4-ounce leadhead explains the Johnson pro. "The heavier head is easier to cast in the wind, and easier to

Reed nearly always fishes a rub with a hook exposed. When a bass hits, Reed doesn't have to set the hook ar hard. Naturally, keeping the hook sharp is extremely important. He also fishes grubs with medium action spinning tackle. One of the most productive places to fish a grub, says Reed, is around steep banks and points where the depth drops quickly. He likes to cast straight to the bank, then jump the lure down in a series of three or four "frog hops." Then he lowers his rod tip and hops the lure down again.

"Strikes usually come as the lure is falling," Reed notes. "Generally, a short hopping retrieve like this will bring a lot of strikes, but if this doesn't work, try other retrieves.

"Sometimes I jump the lure four or five feet at a time, and other times I just barely hop the grub. The bass will tell you how they want it, so try a lot of different retrieves until one works.

Reed will fish grubs on lines ranging from our to 12 pound test, but eight pound test is his favorite. It lets the lure fall quickly but has enough strength to handle some of the larger bass Reed has encountered.

"The grub is often thought of

The Hancock County Alternative Schooling Association (HCASA) is a private non-profit educational foundation dedicated to the prevention of school dropouts and the return of local, presently unemployed, recent school dropouts to an ongoing educational program.

Active for the last two years, the primary focus of HCASA has been to establish and operate an alternative school, funded from grants and other sources, for students who cannot function successfully in an ordinary school environment.

These students often do not qualify for special education or cannot be served in the Chapter I program because there is not enough Chapter I money to serve all or other public support. "The dropout problem is one that should be handled by the local public school systems if sufficient funds were available in their budgets," said McNeil. "Unfortunately, those budgets are stretched completely beyond their limits

Close working relations will be maintained with the local schools and the Hancock County Youth Court. which will be the principle source referring students to the Alternative School, according to McNeil.

"We have experienced cooperation from both school systems (city and county). They are behind the concept," he said.

Several vocational courses have been planned as part of the curriculum at the middle school level to stimulate student interest in hopes of leading to additional occupational skills training in the high school. Suggested courses include introduction to metal fabrication, wildlife and recreation management, introduction to floral design, home maintenance, personal skills development, introduction to horticulture, introduction to electronics, introduction to building trades and computer assisted basic skills.

"Once students are enrolled in the middle school program, we would like to continue into the high school The Alternative School as planned will: * Be fully accredited by the State of Mississippi and authorized to issue high school diplomas.

* Offer grade levels seven through 12.

* Feature a state-approved curriculum for accredited schools, yet innovative (educational and vocational) programs will be developed and tested as additions.

The planned approximate initial size of the school will accommodate 60 students

held. The site selection committee has located a suitable building for the school. which will be publicized when it is secured.

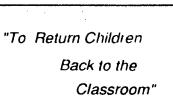

The grants committee has established a fundraising plan which will be implemented as soon as this application for tax-exempt status is approved. The personnel committee has begun to review applications for the teaching positions and staff.

Initial start-up operations of this program are hoped to begin the fall of this year, if at all possible.

Chevis has reported receiving inquiries from teachers and administrative personnel interested in becoming involved with the school.

The general membership meeting will be held the first Wednesday in June and anyone may become a member of the Association. Teachers, principals and administrators are encouraged to attend the meeting and join.

Correspondence should be mailed to Hancock County alternative School Association, P.O. Box 333, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

North Bay, Waveland elementaries slate K-3 registration

Superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, Robert V. Magee, announced Waveland and North Bay Elementary schools will hold pre-registration for the 1990-91 school term on Wednesday, May 16, in each school library between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Students who reside within the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and plan to enter grades K-3 for the first time at Waveland or North Bay Elementary schools are eligible to pre-register. A certified copy of the child's birth certificate, a Certificate of Compliance from the health department or family physician, and two proof of residence documents are requested at pre-registration and will be required before the child may attend classes.

Mississippi law man-dates that children who are to enter kindergarten must attain the age of five on or before Sept. 1, 1990. Those who are to enter first grade must attain age six on or before Sept. 1,

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

They call me father

"Dear Father: It was so good to have seen you again. I truly hope I did not embarrass you with the kissing and hugging. We both know that you are truly family. But others may not realize how far back we go and what we have been through.

"Anyway, I was not only kissing and hugging you, but also all the other presence I felt in you: Jesus, mama... I also was drawing the strength that I needed to face life and to carry "(Uncle), it's been said that God never gives you more than you can bear! I truly hope that is so, because I don't think that I can take anymore; at least not right now... The only way I can preserve my sanity is by holding on to the good Lord's robe and bending his ears..

"I'm really grateful that the Lord won out over any desire you may have had when you were a young man for a wife and family. I cannot imagine what my life would be like without you in it."

Not related to me by blood, this personable young lady in her mid-thirties has been like a daughter/niece to me since she was just a big child. As the quotation indicates, she alternately calls me father and uncle, reflecting the long-standing, close relationship between me and her family.

If there were no other justification for calling a fellow human father, such a real, meaningful and practical relationship as this would be reason enough. What else is our life made of but a network of such ties, genetic and otherwise, which introduce, sustain and nourish profound meaning and fulfillment in our life?

"Call no one on earth your father; you have but one Father in heaven" (Mt. 23: 9)! This text is frequently quoted by Fundamentalists to prove that God forbids us to call any human being father. However, Jesus himself would have been a chief offender if this were the case; for, among other instances recounted in the Gospels, he spoke of the Prodigal Son's father (Lk. 15: 11-32) and of the father of the two discordant sons (Mt. 21: 28-32) as if he thoroughly expected their children and everyone else to address them as fathers of their families.

Further, the context in which Jesus spoke indicates clearly that Jesus was attacking the spirit of superiority and pride which were being displayed in the pursuit and cherishing of titles. The Pharisees were the almost exclusive culprits here, continually vying to show themselves above the everyday people. That said, the bottom line is, does it matter at all what any person is called as long as the name, title-or nickname, for that matter—is comfortable and meaningful for both parties involved? Frankly, I feel best when people call me by my

Jesus was obviously speaking the language of his native culture when he referred to his Father in heaven, since God is neither male nor female and can be described equally well as Mother or Father. At this time of the year when we celebrate Mother's Day, we would do well to take note of the fact that many of God's most distinctive qualities seem to fit a mother

Rather than get hung up on names and titles, it behooves us to concentrate on those things in our human relationships which promote mutual faith, trust and love. Admittedly, those things may vary widely according to the dispositions of different people.

In any case, it is a signal honor, privilege and joy for me or for anvone else to be called father, mother, uncle, aunt or anything which speaks of closeness, sharing and mutual strength.

Shawn Niolon and Kenneth Wayne Oertling have each been awarded the national I Dare You Leadership Award in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living, and motiviation for leadership.

The honor will be presented by Principal Donald E. Hillman at ceremonies held at Hancock North Central on May 16.

The I Dare You Award is made available each year by the American Youth Foundation in cooperation with high schools across the country.

The award was first offered in 1941 by William H. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Company in St. Louis, who dared young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through lives of service.

The award takes its name from the book "I Dare You," written by Mr. Danforth, in which he commends the balanced life of mental, physical, social and spiritual development as the backbone of leadership.

Students at the University of Southern Mississippi now may obtain college credit for knowledge and experience gained in the real work-a-day world.

USM has joined more than 2,000 colleges and universities nationwide that offer a "Credit for Prior Learning by Portfolio" option, designed for selfdirected and highly-motivated students.

"The program translates knowledge acquired in a noncollegiate environment into college credit through the development of a portfolio," according to Elizabeth Walker, coordinator of the program for USM's Division of Lifelong Learning.

"The number of years in a job, or experience, doesn't necessarily have significance," she added. "It's how much has been learned that counts. It is not enough to say you know something; you must described what you know."

"We're dealing primarily with part-time, adult learning," noted Dr. Gene Tinnon, USM dean of lifelong learning. Walker said the prior learning credit concept allows participants to reach educational goals in less time and for less money, while avoiding subject matter mastered previously.

Some 10 USM schools and/or departments offer prior learning assessment, including art; geography and area development; history; management; management information systems; marketing (MKT 300 only); music, nursing, philosophy and religion; and radio, television and film.

After meeting regular admission standards, Walker said students must submit a Credit for Prior Learning application, along with a non-refundable $250 fee—the base fee for three semester-hours of credit. No refunds will be made once a portfolio is evaluated.

No more than 30 semesterhours of credit may be earned through the program, and students may earn prior credit for no more than six semesterhours in one area. The credit is reported on official transcripts, but no letter grade or quality points are awarded.

After application is made, an academic advisor within the appropriate department is designated. The advisor assesses the portfolio and provides guidance regarding course selection and credit requirements. There is no guarantee of credit award, but fees will not be refunded once the evaluation is performed.

For more information about Credit for Prior Learning by Portfolio, contact Walker in the USM Division of Lifelong Learning by calling (601).
